CONSTITUTION NOT DEPENDENT ON CONGRESS.

The late decision of Judge Lockran of the United States District Court, sitting at St. Paul, is a stunner to the small dollar politicians who swarm in Washington and who are running the government of a great nation upon the small end of dividends derived from dishonest methods. Whose cunning is equal to the occasion there is upon the country created by small men, whose political sagacity is as broad and deep as a nickel and whose knowledge of fundamental principles of the government they are trying to destroy is equaled by their ideals of statesmanship, which begin and end in toadying to a prince or to a lord.

Evil will be in the day to the people when the future of the country is placed in the hands of creatures of circumstances created through base methods and fostered at a sacrifice of the rights of man, under the most benevolent government possible for man to make from materials there are at his disposal when applied to imperfect man.

Judge Lockran is surely an appointee of an administration that retained some correct thoughts and conclusions upon government and men who understand the theory and practice of the laws of their country, when applied to conditions made by the founders of the government fabric, or he would not have knocked the kettle containing the mash of concession upon the country called government in the fire, when the wormwood and poisonous herbs of the witches and wizards of the Hanna type were distilled and ready to be applied to the principles that are the life of a pure body politic.

Out of the darkness there arises a light in the north that declares the ship of state is near the breakers and points the way to a secure haven where it may be secure against the ignorance and consequent recklessness of its present navigators.

In the decision given in the case of Raphael Ortiz on habeas corpus the court said, upon a review of the facts in the case, that the decisions of the United States Supreme Court declared that a military commission was without authority to try a civilian in United States territory in time of peace. That the island of Porto Rico was United States territory and subject to the constitution the minute it came under control of the United States government.

The decision sustains the position taken by the JOURNAL some time ago when discussing the constitutional relation of the island to the United States, which is the only position that can be taken consistently by authority over territory acquired. The constitution does not necessarily follow the flag, as the reverse will be the fact unless the flag is on the ground when territory is acquired. The decision of the court is in direct line with the theory and fact of government of newly acquired territory. It would be a very lame and decrepit form of government should it be that the constitution in its action upon territory acquired was dependent upon the movements of Mark Hanna and his sort of statesmen in Congress.

When the constitution in its application to and operation in new territory acquired becomes dependent upon the will of politicians, many of whom are ignorant about matters pertaining to legal action of the underlying principles of government, there will be presented to an intelligent world an anomaly in government not recognized in barbarian times.

When those possessed of sufficient law learning to come under the term, lawyer, were presented last winter with a law problem that was included in a resolution offered in Congress declaring that the constitution should not attach to the islands of Porto Rico till ordered by Congress must have been largely at sea, provided always that the learned Congressman was in earnest about the matter included in the resolution. When action by the constitution becomes dependent upon the calibre of men, such as make up a majority in the present Congress, all system in government will be set aside and anarchy will be the rule.

The rights of American citizens in newly acquired territory will be suspended till Mark Hanna and the trusts are willing to confer the blessing of a constitutional form of government upon unfortunate citizens in new territory which would be imperialism of a most vicious character. It is not necessary to follow a law course or talk upon legal construction to determine the constitutional question brought forward by the recent work of Congress including its application to new territory the minute it is acquired. Common sense will solve the problem which is included in the duty there is upon the United States government to protect its citizens wherever they are upon American, or upon territory other than American. When territory is ceded to the United States the authority of the power who ceded the territory is closed. It can no more furnish protection such as it was under obligation to the United States to furnish to United States citizens.

Should it be that the constitution of the United States does not attach, what protection could the government give to its citizens? The government can act only through law and the authority conferred upon it. Its chief authority is derived from the constitution, but if Mark Hanna and the other trust members in Congress have the constitution up their sleeves and refuse to send it on its mission to confer upon the government the authority to protect its citizens there is a source of weakness in our system that should be humiliating to a proud and intelligent people but there is no humiliation as there is no cause for it. The constitution must attach and does become active as was said by the court, the minute territory becomes subject to American authority.

OLDEN DAYS
IN CARSON

Small Boys Have an Historic Experience With Amateur Dramatics.

"My fondest recollections are of Nevada and my old friends who helped me to pass my boyhood days," said W. R. Dalley the manager of the Dalley Stock Company, for both Mr. Dalley and his brother Fred, the advance representative of the organization, were brought up under the genial skies of the Sagebrush State.
Last week the company played in Carson, which was the home of the Dalley boys in their youth, and many pleasant reminiscences were recalled. A good story is told on W. R. Dalley, when he was a youngster, by James A. Yerington. Both himself and "Will," as he was familiarly termed at the time, conceived the idea of forming a juvenile dramatic company. The price of admission was placed at one pin, and their performances were to take place in a barn, which had been a sort of a rendezvous for the youthful thespians.
Their early efforts were somewhat blighted by the constant throwing of rocks and tin cans by a gang of boys who were envious of their endeavors. Now Yerington was president of the club, and Dalley was the treasurer and the two formed a plot to rid themselves of the nuisance.
They secured a small cannon and loaded it with balls, old iron and whatever was handy, and awaited the onslaught from the opposing forces. A crash of missiles against the side of the barn brought back the thundering report of the cannon and when the smoke had cleared away, the boys to their surprise found that instead of creating havoc among the trouble makers, that they had almost shot all the clothing off of one of Carson's most respected citizens, who had been innocently walking by when the hostilities commenced. Suffice to say that "play acting" was shelved for the time being.
A singular coincidence of those happy days is that the youthful treasurer of the boys' dramatic club should return years after as manager of one of the strongest dramatic organizations on the road, to those early scenes, and find his old companions also in positions of prominence in the business world.

A Coming Attraction.

A pleasant feature which recommends the Dalley Company is the individual merit of the respective members of the organization. The company is composed of sterling actors and actresses and when an organization of seasoned professionals endeavor to present a production, a dramatic treat is assured. Dramatic art finds its highest development in the closest approach to nature. The over color that is demanded of the painter in order to express within narrow limits the thought of a broad landscape, or to give to portraiture semblance of life, is likewise necessary in the work of the dramatic artist who expresses lengthened history in the minute show of an hour or two. When, however, this is used in excess, it becomes extravagance and an offence. That nice discrimination which is manifest in the work of the careful student of the dramatic art, is what characterizes worth. Reno has often been afflicted with many so called "dramatic organizations" who even at high prices deceive the public and by their vain effort cause the public to lose interest in theatricals. In view of these facts the Dalleys will be welcome visitors.

The Grim Reaper.

Sheldon O. Wells, a prominent and highly respected citizen of Reno, died at his home in this city yesterday morning, a victim of pneumonia.
Mr. Wells was a native of Canada, and aged 54 years, 5 months and 23 days. He came to Nevada in the early days and removed to Reno fourteen years ago. He was engaged in the mercantile business in this city a number of years. His wife and one daughter, Mrs. Sam Wheeler, survive him.

Wheelmen Matters.

A club run will take place Sunday afternoon to view the site of the proposed track on Col. Maxson's property east of town.
Active training for the relay race with Sacramento will soon begin. King Ryan will train the team. He is expected to arrive in a week or two.
A relay team from Carson wants to try conclusions with the Reno Wheelmen. The race will take place in this city the latter part of next month.

May be Wanted Elsewhere.

Sheriff Kenna came up from Auburn yesterday to see if E. V. Evans, who now languishes in the county jail, answered to the description of a smooth article wanted in his county. He found that he was not the man he was looking for, but thought Evans might be the person needed at Lincoln, Cal., for passing forged checks.

"Above the Clouds" was played to a large and appreciative audience at Lonkey's hall Saturday evening last. The cast was made up entirely of local talent, as follows:
Crazy Phil..... Thomas H. Delaney
Hester Thorne..... Mrs. Kaye
Amos Gaylord..... W. Hastings

So well was the play given that any further efforts on the part of the dramatic club will be cordially received. One particular feature of the performance was the excellent music by the Verdi band, for whose benefit the play was given. After the show Prof. Grignon's orchestra played for those who cared to dance.

A Kick Registered.
The above is the title of an article which was published in the JOURNAL yesterday morning and which reads as follows:

(COMMUNICATED.)

We, representatives of what we believe to be a majority of the student body, express ourselves as greatly disappointed at the decision rendered by the judges last night. In our opinion James Gites was entitled to a place in the delegation that will be sent to Salt Lake to represent the University of Nevada in the intercollegiate debate with the University of Utah.
The above article was entirely uncalled for and does not, in any sense whatever, voice the sentiment of the student body, and I take this means of so informing the gentlemen who were so kind as to accept the position of judges of the preliminary debate Wednesday evening. The students as a whole were not disappointed at the decision rendered by the judges and the students who caused the above article to be published, did so without authority, and I am inclined to believe that it was published by some who were "sore" on account of their favorite not having gained a position on the debating team.
I also believe, and in so saying I know, that the sentiment of the student body is voiced, that the judges in rendering their decision, did so in a fair and impartial manner.

Fast Driving in Russia.
In the larger cities of Russia there is no limit to the speed at which a horse may be driven through the public streets. The typical harness horse is the Orloff, a breed founded by Count Orloff-Chernenski, being a cross between the Arabian stallion Smetanka and imported mares, principally English.

An average roadster is 16 hands high and weighs 1,100 pounds, with heavy mane, a bushy tail that reaches nearly to the ground and "iron" limbs that show great muscular development. The favorite color is gray. Such an animal is driven through the principal streets of St. Petersburg at a furious pace, that portion near the center and beside the surface car tracks being reserved for fast driving.

During the winter months teams of two and three abreast are driven to sleighs at a three minute gait. There is racing all winter, the courses being flooded at night to provide three inches of solid ice. American pneumatic sulkeys, harness, boots, gaiting appliances, etc., are in great use.

Lord Lansdowne Visits Turner.
No one was admitted to Turner's house in Queen Anne street unless specially invited. There was a sort of little iron grille in the center of the front door, through which the old housekeeper used to look and see who was there. As an example of the rarity of visitors the late Lord Lansdowne, who was a great lover of art and a friend of Turner's, told me that after receiving no answers to his letters he resolved to beard the lion in his den. He therefore went and knocked at the door, when a shock head appeared at the iron grating, and its owner called out, "Cat's meat, I suppose?" "Yes, cat's meat," answered his lordship and squeezed himself in. "Millais' Life of Turner."

The Aged Minister.
If his work be in a city church, it is a grave question whether any minister can now discharge it with efficiency who is much above 60 years of age. The multitude of details in a city parish, the excitement of the life, the severe demand upon the mind and the heavy burden of responsibility call for a man in the prime of life, with an alert intellect and an unflinching body.—Ian Maclaren in Ladies' Home Journal.

Took Their Places.
Here is a story which Baron Dowsa, the celebrated Irish judge, once told in that exaggerated "brogue" which he loved to employ:
"I was down in Cork holding assizes. On the first day, when the jury came in, the officer of the court said, 'Gentlemen av the jury, ye'll take yer accustomed places, if ye please.' And may I never laugh," said the baron, "if they didn't all walk into the dock."

An Unknown Hero.
La Gaceta, published in Guadalajara, part in English and part in Spanish, prints in a prominent place the following:
A CARD.
Will the gentleman who embraced my wife at the entrance to the postoffice about 9 o'clock Thursday evening please send me his photograph for my "Album of Heroes?" He will greatly oblige,
J. L.
—Mexico Two Republics.

A Bright Jeweler.
A gentleman tells the following joke on a jeweler: A young man who was on the verge of matrimony went to the jeweler and bought a ring and left instructions that in it be engraved the legend, "From A to Z," which, being interpreted, meant from Anthony to Zenobia. To his astonishment, on calling for the ring the next day he found it engraved like an Egyptian obelisk and on closer examination found that the jeweler had put the whole alphabet "from A to Z" on it.

By the aid of mechanical instruments human beings can do many wonderful things, but to save his life no man could cut such a perfect circle without a pair of compasses as the parolant does out of a leaf with nothing but her jaws.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.
KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.
About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has had a similar attack since.—A. B. PARSONS. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

Hair Dressing Parlors Removed to Hartung Building.
Scalp treatment, shampooing, facial treatments, singeing and brushing the hair. Mrs. Adams' hair tonic used only tonic that stops falling of the hair. No agents employed to sell it. Open evenings. may8w1

The Best in the World.
We believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best in the world. A few weeks ago we suffered with a severe cold and a troublesome cough. Having read their advertisements in our own and other papers we purchased a bottle to see if it would effect us. It cured us before the bottle was more than half used. It is the best medicine out for colds and coughs.—The Herald, Andersonville, Ind. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

B. G. Lucey will give a social dance at Coppersmith hall Saturday evening m1013

In almost every neighborhood there is some one whose life has been saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, or who has been cured of chronic diarrhoea by the use of that medicine. Such persons make a point of telling of it whenever opportunity offers, hoping that it may be means of saving other lives. For sale by Wm. Pinniger
